

Deeply conscious of the ardent desire of our respective peoples that friendly relations between our countries should be strengthened still further, we call upon men of goodwill throughout the world to join us in the pursuit of peaceful co-existence between countries, regardless of differences in size, race or national policies.