

has said that man must live by the "sweat of his brow". It thus follows that the nation must live by the sweat of its brow. Do not be misled into thinking that education and civilization in any way disprove this fundamental truth. Different conditions demand different types of work, but the principle remains the same. Here in Lesotho it must be evident to all that only by the sweat of our brow and muddy hands and feet shall we be able to develop our economy and bring our country to prosperity.
