

mind this is the grossest insult offered to my fellow-countrymen to date.

It must be obvious to everyone that the Constitution could not have been so framed as to deprive the country of an effective Government during the time of an election and it is not surprising therefore, that Section 72 gives the Prime Minister and his Cabinet full powers during such a time. But if the Opposition is really ignorant of the provisions of this section, it will come as a disappointment to them to learn that I have the power to do everything that is necessary to thwart their evil plans.

It is my duty under the Constitution to continue to enforce law and order in this country and I intend to carry out that duty no matter what obstacles the Opposition may place in my way or how drastic the steps may be that I shall be obliged to take.
