

world must surely know that no Government - no matter how well-meaning - will grant asylum at the price of its national security. Lesotho's security is primarily a domestic matter and the activities of the refugees which are prejudicial to our national security are obviously blatant interference with domestic policy. On this matter the Government of Lesotho is clear: 'entire responsibility for Lesotho's security rests it and no-one else.